

Elixer help for health

MORE than a year ago, as widely reported in the media, controversial radio broadcaster Derryn Hinch suffered a complete immune system shut down and was at death's door.

Cut to today and the man they call the 'human headline' is back in full health and the same love him or hate him Hinch of old. Hinch credits in no small part his remarkable improvement to a natural health and wellness powder called Lifelixer.

"Often in the past well meaning people bombarded me with every potion, berry, nut, fruit juice 'magic water' and antioxidant possible from Brazil to the Himalayas," he said.

"I was also advised to stop being an atheist and embrace God. Instead I found Lifelixer."

Free radicals impact the body in many ways and affect many of the processes that keep the body in balance. The following factors have been known to increase free radical activities including smoking, air pollution, and a diet heavy in fats, stress, ultra violet lights, high blood pressure and a general depletion in health and vitality.

While our bodies provide us with natural internally produced antioxidants to counter free radical activity, this mechanism is greatly impaired by insufficient amounts of dietary "antioxidant" vitamins.

Lifelixer's formulation embraces the latest technology and the finest of nature's herbs, plant extracts, minerals and vitamins.

"Lifelixer changed this sceptic's mind and body," Hinch said.
